

Wisconsin 2004

ILEC and CLEC DSL Availability

Digital Subscriber Line (DSL) is a copper-based technology that provides a high-speed connection to the Internet. The technology is dependent on the distance of the customer from the serving central office. A number of companies have DSL available to 100% of their customers within an exchange. CLECs in most cases overlay the ILEC DSL service offering. Availability on this map is based on exchange area and zip code areas.

Map 6

March 2006

Wisconsin Public Service Commission